The FT-IR spectroscopy in reflection mode is a totally non-invasive analytical technique that allows to study the composition of the original varnishes of musical instruments. The infrared beam is directed on defined areas of interest, identified throughout the support of the photography in ultraviolet light.